The Dragon's head and tail are called the -♁- nodes in the ephemeris. Nodes are points where a planet traveling in its orbit, crosses the -♁- path as for instance, the -♁- does at the Equinoxes. The -♁- crosses its Eastern Node each year at the Vernal Equinox. Here, the -♁- crosses the equator into the northern hemisphere to usher in the urge to bring forth. Seeds sprout and animals and birds mate; grass grows, flowers bloom and the trees give forth new leaves. Passover, -♁- on the Eastern Horizon or "Easter" The tropic of -♁- in the Northern Hemisphere; The Dragon's Head.

The western node of the -♁- is the point where the Great Giver Of Life, -♁- crosses the equator and leaves the Northern Hemisphere at the Zodiac sign -♁-, the exaltation constellation of -♁-. Here the -♁- begins its Fall (Fall Season) to the dead level of the winter season. The -♁- has been exalted at the opposite house of ♁ in -♁-, together with -♁-, the -♁- has wrought a bountiful harvest. Here in -♁-, -♁- takes over by turning off the exuberent action of -♁-. Its time for the harvest and we reap what we have sown in the spring season. Life withers at this point and leaves fall from the trees. The death and destructiveness of -♁- takes over in the northern hemisphere. Here begins the Dragons tail. THE TROPIC OF ♁ THE DRAGON OR SERPENT IN THE HUMAN BODY IS THE SPINE.
